Intermodal Experience among the Reported Responses

Intermodal Experience among the Reported Responses

Legend

First experience

non-representative responses for unicycle and skateboard.

Less than a month

Several months

More than a year

Several years

I do not know

Reading Guide

Two-thirds of the intermodal cyclists have adopted these mobility practices for at least a year, having registered them early in their mobility habits.

Conversely, one-fifth of them have been traveling this way for only a few months, or even less than a month before the administration of the questionnaire.

The combined use of conventional bicycles translates into an intermodal experience of more than a year for 72% of users, in the same way as electric-assist bicycles (64%) or kick scooters (89%).

In contrast, this proportion is 57% for users of electric scooters, 44% for shared mobility, and 36% for folding bicycles.